

Public Art in the City

Date/Time	Thursday 21 November 2019 2-4pm	Price	£15
Venue	Meet outside Exit 2 (right-hand steps) of St. Paul's Underground Station at 1.50pm	Leader	Elizabeth Singleton

The Corporation of the City of London has a long-standing commitment to public art. It is used to provide landmarks, define meeting places, inject humour and capture history. This tour will explore some of these unexpected moments of beauty, amusement and intrigue and reflect on the some of the social history that may have inspired the work.

Leader

Elizabeth Singleton has been working in the heritage sector for the past ten years and currently holds the post of Sales Account Manager in a large London museum. In her spare time she leads tours on a freelance basis for various organisations, which focus on social history and public art. Elizabeth led the successful walk in Canary Wharf last term.
