Date/Time	Thursday 3 April 2025 12pm	Price	£12
Venue	The Foundling Museum, 40 Brunswick Square, London WC1N 1AZ (Meet just inside main entrance)	Lecturer/ Guide	Lucy Shanahan

A visit to The Foundling Museum to see the current exhibition Self Made: Reshaping Identities which features work by artists Phoebe Collings-James, Rachel Kneebone, Matt Smith and Renee So. These contemporary ceramics reflect on the complexities of identity and self creation. Our visit includes a guided tour lasting about 25 minutes given by Lucy Shanahan.

There is a music performance in the Picture Gallery at 1 pm.

We are welcome to look at the rest of the museum after our tour.

Please note there is no café on site but Brunswick Square, which has several eateries, is five minutes walk away.

Guide and Exhibition Curator

Lucy Shanahan is a highly versatile curator with extensive experience and expertise in multidisciplinary exhibitions and artists' commissions. Collaboration is at the heart of her practice, forging relationships between artists, people and places to deliver dynamic and engaging projects to a high standard, together with a commitment to diversity, accessibility and sustainability. In 2022 she undertook a course in Garden Design at Capel Manor with a view to exploring the intersection between arts, culture, people and plants in an era of environmental crisis. She is particularly interested in projects that support climate action.
